Paradise Pet Resort Daycare Injury Risk

Daycare for dogs is really not that different from daycare for children. During active play, it is possible for injuries to occur. Some dogs may play a little rougher than others, and at times even tempers can flare in the most docile of dogs. Dogs will often vie for status. We do have the occasional argument between two dogs. Normally, they consist of a lot of noise and a lot of slobber. When we do have an argument, our staff is trained to use safe and effective ways to break up different types of arguments.

As a result, it is important to understand that while these incidents are not an everyday occurrence, they do occur and are generally minor in nature. The most common injuries that we see (but certainly not the only injury) are minor cuts and punctures to the ears. Although these bleed, they are fairly minor in nature but do require attention for proper healing. Treatments usually consist of a visit to the vet for professional observation and assessment. Generally the wound will be cleaned: stitched or glued if necessary, with a follow up round of antibiotics to prevent infection.

AS THIS IS AN INHERENT RISK OF DAYCARE, PARADISE PET RESORT WILL NOT ASSUME AND RISK OR COST ASSOCIATED WITH INJURY SUSTAINED IN OUR DAYCARE PROGRAM.

Please complete the form below to let us know what you prefer we do in the case of an incident with your dog does occur. We require this form be given the reception staff before your dog begins their evaluation.
